Salsa

- 3 Serrano peppers
- 1 28 oz can crushed tomatoes
- 1 medium onion chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 bunch cilantro
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Dash of lemon juice

Chop peppers, onion and cilantro. Place peppers, onion, cilantro, tomatoes, garlic in blender and blend till smooth. Add dash of lemon juice (to keep it from turning brown) and salt and pepper to taste.

Refrigerate any left overs for up to two weeks.

Did you know that invitations to and announcements of social occasions were used by the elite in Europe beginning in the late 17th century. The royal class would announce a new member of the family or invite their peers to a celebration by handwritten, delivered notes. Since writing was a privilege of the educated, handwritten invitations and announcements were preferred and mass producing notes was considered poor taste.

The printing press had no role in social invitations or announcements until the end of the 19th century. In the beginning printed notes were expensive so the aristocracy began sending mass produced notes as a signal of their wealth. Printed stationery became available to the masses when industrialization drove down the cost of printing. The original printing process required the placement of a tissue between announcements in order to prevent the drying ink to damage the next announcement.

That is the origin of our modern day card tissue.
